GRAIN PRICES LOW

Farmers Reverse Holding Policy of Last Year

RUSHING CROPS TO MARKET

BY CHARLES D. MICHAELS

CHICAGO, Oct. 9.—Depression in the grain markets due to excessive marketing by farmers has brought them to a semi-demoralized condition. The latter has swamped the speculative trade, filled up the export demand to a large extent and brought values down to the lowest level of the year, and on corn and oats to the lowest since 1912.

Farmers have marketed upward of 350,000,000 bushels of wheat since July 1, and at primary markets alone the receipts have been 209,000,000 bushels, 82,000,000 bushels more than last year. The corn movement has been the largest known in the last few months, and oats are well toward the high mark in the marketing line, with 67,490,000 bushels moved to primary markets in nine weeks, 5,000,000 bushels more than last year. The visible supply of wheat is above the average for this season, with the exception of 1918-19. The supply of corn is the largest for this time of year in more than ten years and oats the heaviest on record.

Farmers have reversed their action of last year, when they held their grain back for higher prices, while this year they have sold freely. The latter are tired out and are liquidating at severe losses. Virtually all grain for future delivery held at the close Saturday showed losses, except purchases made at inside prices at the session. The United States Grain Growers, Inc., announce that they have 30,000,000 bushels of grain on hand and will market it, the officials having power to sell when they deem best.

So far farmers who have come out best are those who marketed their grain during August and early September. The War Finance Corporation is preparing a loan of $1,000,000,000 to the agricultural interests. The money must be put out at once or relief must come from other directions to stop the panicky selling.

In Western Nebraska wheat is selling at twenty cents a bushel at loading stations, freight rates being so high that grain values are depressed. A letter from a farmer in Western North Dakota tells of a foreclosure sale at which horses sold at $2 a head, mares with foal at $10, wagons at $5, harvesters at $10 for cash. Many farmers are leaving that country except those who are unable to or have no other place to go.

They have not raised enough to pay their taxes, to say nothing about paying interest due on mortgages, and holders of the latter have in some instances been obliged to pay the taxes to prevent the land being sold. They will also have to carry the farmers until another crop is raised.

Land in North Dakota that sold at $30 an acre a few years ago cannot be disposed of at $10 at present. Under such conditions there can be no general prosperity unless the agricultural interests are enabled to get better prices.

The situation from a market standpoint is extremely pessimistic. In fact, so much so that it is time for a change.

Movement of the Canadian crop is expected to be the big factor for some time to come. Canadian farmers have marketed freely and the movement for the next sixty days will be heavy. Canada may sell an average of 1,000,000 bushels a day for the next ninety days to work off its surplus, and the heavy movement there is regarded as a depressing factor.—Phila. Ledger.

A War Hero Honored

For some months past, the Rev. Francis H. Moore, D. D., has been at Aux Le Bains, France, with his invalid brother. While at Paris, enroute for home, a few days ago, he bought a handsome floral wreath, and placed it upon the grave of John J. Hoffacker, one of our patriot soldiers, in the Ploisy Cemetery, about six miles south of Soissons.

The Mayor of Soissons, George Frank Waugh, who received Dr. Moore cordially and who assisted him in unpacking the flowers, said it was the most beautiful tribute ever brought to the Cemetery.

After placing the wreath on the grave, the Doctor learned that it was not certain that a burial service had been held over the grave of the war hero, and accordingly he recited the formal Christian committal service, Mayor Waugh standing reverently by his side.

It was a thoughtful, graceful act in Dr. Moore thus to honor the memory of the modest young patriot who so bravely laid down his young life in a foreign land in defense of his country.

In honor of their recent marriage, Mr. and Mrs. William T. Ennis, of Odessa, were given a variety shower, by Mr. and Mrs. John Heller and Mr. and Mrs. Lee Heller, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Heller, Friday evening. The affair was attended by about 125 friends of the bride and groom and all spent a most enjoyable time.

Mr. and Mrs. Ennis received many beautiful gifts in cut glass, silver, linen, etc.

7.30. Evening prayer and sermon. October 18th. St. Luke the beloved physician. Colossians IV.14. St. Luke was born in Antioch, a city famous for learning and wealth, but more honored for the fact that here the disciples were first called Christians. His profession was that of physician, but it is said that he was also skilful in painting, and there are pictures still in existence that some claim to have been drawn by him. He was probably converted by Paul, during his abode in Antioch; for after his conversion, he became St. Paul's inseparable companion, sharing his labors and all his dangers, even when others forsook him, and never leaving him till his death. He wrote the Gospel which bears his name during his travels with St. Paul in Achaia, and his history of the Acts of the Apostles during St. Paul's two years of imprisonment.

Gospel means, Good News! Do you wish to overcome the difficulties of your own little world? Then join hands with Christ who said, "I have overcome the world." You can find Him at church next Sunday.

The Rt. Rev. Philip Cook, D. D., was consecrated Bishop of Delaware, on October 12, 1920.

We were much gratified to see so many present at the services last Sunday. Progress ought to be our watchword! This year we must strive to quietly but patiently uphold the healthy routine of our church life and habits. Loyalty alone can do it. Steadfast, constant loyalty! Don't you help? There are the parish societies, the Woman's Auxiliary, and the Parish Guild and the Altar Guild. They all need new members. Are you a member and a worker? If not, will you not become interested in one or more of these agencies to promote the work of the Parish? Let us give a strong pull and a pull together.

We are glad to welcome three new members to the Woman's Auxiliary.

The Fall meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary met at St. Peter's Church, Smyrna, on Thursday. The service began with a celebration of the Holy Communion, with an address by the Rt. Rev. Charles B. Our church is attempting to meet the challenge of the world. We are seeking to bring the truths of the Bible to bear upon the problems of every day life. The church activities are not ends in themselves, but means towards an end, namely, that souls may glorify God and enjoy Him forever. There is a purpose and aim in every life. The church will help any life to realize its God-given mission. There is no real or lasting happiness outside the family of God. The ways and the associations of the world may appear beautiful, but they lead only to death. Don't follow the guide-posts of earth if you wish to reach heaven. Let God, himself, be your strength and guide. He will guide you to his home above. The church, as the family of God on earth, seeks to minister in His name. Won't you come and wait upon its ministry?

Verily
the Gods

"What do you think?"

Beth Mills lifted her blue, quizzical eyes from the sewing in her lap, and repeated the excited sentence of her friend. "What do I think? I shall think you out of your mind if you don't calm down!"

"Well, you will be out of your mind when I tell you that there's a man going to marry you," Edith went on.

Beth smiled a moderate smile. "I hope there is—somewhere; and I'll grab him if he meets specifications!"

"No, really, Beth Blue Eyes, a man has taken out a license to marry you."

"My dear," the cool voice answered, "you are demented. The man whom—"

"But I'm not crazy. His name is Marden Campbell."

"I never heard of him—honest Injun!"

"Never you mind, he knows you. He has taken out a license, and it gives your name and address. You know the Star is printing the names of those after a license; and it must be you, your name and address. See!"

She thrust the newspaper in front of Beth.

Beth put aside the needle and calmly took the paper. There was a man's face, and under it a brief run of type which said in effect that Marden Campbell, a young engineer who had invented a new mining process, was stopping in the city long enough to wed Miss Beth Mills, etc., and that the honeymoon would be spent in South America, where he was to be employed.

"Mum-m-m, a honeymoon in South America, and I have always longed to roam; verily the gods understand. Dad used to say I ought to marry a viking or a hobo. I wonder which he is," Beth commented.

Her starting friend burst out: "You cold-blooded witch, do you know him?"

"Edith, I never saw him, never knew him, never heard of him!" was the brief answer. "Ah, there's the telephone; suppose—"

A gay voice, touched with the tone that is suggestive of manhood, strength and determination, spoke to her. Did she recognize him? she was asked.

The spirit of mischief and dare-devilry that had been the bane of her mother's life and the quiet joy of her father's, took possession of her. Yes, she recognized him; yes, she would be glad to see him. He could come right over.

When Beth reached her room the open-mouthed Edith was there; and in answer to the unspoken question Beth replied: "He is coming. Now we'll see what he's like!"

"Beth, you certainly have the nerve," Edith exclaimed impolitely.

"No, my dear, he has—not I; and I want to see what breed of man he is."

But when the excited friend had departed, Beth felt her courage ooze a bit. She picked up the newspaper and looked long at the cut of the man who expected to marry her. It was a strong face—of that there was no doubt; the face of a man accustomed to have his own way.

"Good heavens, suppose he has made up his mind in some crazy way to marry me; I really believe he would. He certainly looks like the kind dad used to call a hobo."

She made no special preparations to meet him, nor did she plan any campaign; for she realized that such a situation might work out too many ways to be arranged beforehand. She had heard of men impulsive and impetuous whose methods were not common ones; but this specimen—he was unusual.

When word came that he was downstairs she was decidedly nervous for a moment; then she laughed it off. "Come, Beth, your people were pioneers, fathers of the unknown. Look him over!"

She stepped into the room and closed the door. He loomed before her, tall, brown of face, his eyes smiling. His gaze was direct and frank—the sort of gaze she liked. He made no impulsive step toward her as she entered.

The smile vanished on his face. "Pardon me, I came to see Miss Beth Mills."

She nodded and said: "I am Miss Mills," and smiled as his face went to blankness, astonishment, then to an expression her keen eyes could not fathom. Only she knew that behind the face was a swift-winking mind.

His face relaxed. "But—but this is a deuce of a situation!"

She laughed, for the expression was a favorite with her father. She stopped when he saw a new interest light in Campbell's face.

"But I certainly am engaged to Miss Beth Mills at this address," he said, a faint smile on his face.

"He seems to take the disappointment rather lightly," was her suggestion to herself; then she said aloud: "Please sit down and perhaps we can unravel the mystery."

He obeyed willingly enough, and in the frank way of men who live bravely and openly and have nothing to conceal he told the story he had to tell.

As he went on, his steady eyes upon her, she felt a stirring within her such as no man had ever caused before. After all he was her breed—the man of the open, battling with great obstacles, clean-lived, open-souled, and "a honey-moon in South America" was the phrase that came to her mind.

"It looks as if somebody had put something over on me," he said without trace of bitterness. "You see, my work is with things that play fair, and some men and women don't."

She nodded again. "My father was a mining engineer, too."

He looked at her with eyes a bit wistful. "Then you understand."

She nodded once more. "I think I understand, and I think I know the explanation, and—"

"Never mind; I was going to keep my word with her—the one I met; but this releases me," he said quietly, relief in his tone. He rose to his feet.

"But I—I would like to see you again—"

Deep in her soul she smiled and helped him out. "I can talk mines with the best of them; and I will be glad to see you."

His strong hand folded around hers and the gaze of each was direct—the blood of the pioneer in the old immortal way, without frills, without bluff, without fear.

As soon as he had gone she hurried upstairs, swung open a door and faced the pretty girl who turned from her cosmetics to face her.

"Grace Mcayer, when you were at the shore last summer did you engage yourself to a man by the name of Campbell, and did you use my name for your own and give him my address?" Beth demanded.

The stunned girl rallied and burst into explanation that collapsed into tears. "It was for fun. I didn't think he'd get serious; they don't, you know, at such places; but did he—has he—oh, Beth, I didn't think! Was he simple enough for that? I hope he won't—"

"No, I don't think he will; and I'm not angry with you; for, well, you see, I—no you won't and you never will—but I like the idea of a—honey-moon in South America."

TAILORED DAYTIME FROCKS AND FRIVOLOUS NEGLIGEEES

"ALL in the blue, unclouded weather" of autumn we shall see such handsome examples of the tailored dress, as that one pictured here, usurping the place of the costume suit. When the air is keen a scarf or small wrap, or a mere choker of fur, will provide that note of warmth that may be needed.

Fashion, having determined upon simple lines in day-time dresses, decrees that their decorations shall make them interesting. The most is made of opportunity for embroidery, or other embellishments on them, and in soft colors in which silks and laces join hands with ribbons and flowers to make the airiest of garments. But the season strikes a new note by presenting us with negligees made of black crepe de chine with black fringe, or lace or panels of georgette as decorative features, and nothing relieves this all-black on some of the models. Others show small ribbon roses in gay colors set at the bottom of panels.

Another negligee sent over by Paris is more cheerful and more promising.

The length of this dress, its sleeve and general outlines may be taken as a criterion of the mode in tailored frocks. The embroidery is simple and used with a refreshing reserve, in a season that presents many examples of over-decoration. Any of the usual wool suitings may be used for it, with the revers on the bodice and skirt, the sleeve facing made of satin or of ribbon like that in the sash.

In considering a new day-time frock, it is worth while to take note of all the important style points that distinguish this season; the prominence given to new departures in the shapes of sleeves, narrow fringes of monkey fur and silk fringes, new neck lines, girdles of metal, beads and composition.

Within the walls of home, cheerful breakfast coats and frivolous negligees continue to help us start the day right and spend its leisure hours in comfort. These pretty garments show no radical departures from the negligees of yesterday—they still include Japanese and Chinese

Block Effects for Skirts. Although in the novelty fabrics for skirts stripes appear to predominate, several of the satin prunella models show a fondness for block treatments. A many number shows beige blockers. Another model in this same combination of colors features both box and side plaits, the block effect being especially effective in this handling. Striking color contrast is achieved in a black prunella, plaited to simulate a panel effect, zigzag lines in royal blue and beige marking the panels.

Grape Juice Souffle. Soak two tablespoons of gelatin in one pint of grape juice for five minutes, then heat in a double boiler until the gelatin dissolves. Strain into a bowl and place in a pan of ice water until it begins to solidify. Beat the whites of two eggs stiff, fold them into the gelatin, whip thoroughly and fill individual serving glasses half-full. Top with whipped cream.

Organdie Collars, Cuffs, Belts. White organdie collars, cuffs and belts are used on simple frocks of white dotted swiss.

That's Different. "I thought you said Maribelle wouldn't stand for any kissing?" "Oh, she'll stand for it, but she prefers sitting in a hammock or on a bench."

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS.

The fall days are made enjoyable by dainty foods. The following will be a few worth trying on a family:

Rice Parfait.—Soak one-half an envelope of gelatin in one and one-half cups of milk for ten minutes, then dissolve in two cups of hot boiled rice. Add one cup of sugar and when the mixture is cold fold in one cup of cream beaten stiff, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt and a few chopped nuts with a little vanilla. Turn into mould and pack in ice and salt.

Lemon Sponge.—Soak one-half of an envelope of gelatin in one-fourth of a cup of cold water five minutes, dissolve in one cup of boiling water, add three-fourths of a cup of sugar, one-fourth cup of lemon juice and the grated rind of one lemon; strain and set aside to thicken. Stir occasionally, and when quite thick beat with a wire whisk until frothy; add the whites of two eggs beaten stiff and pile by spoonfuls into a glass dish. Chill and serve with beated custard.

Chocolate Blanc Marge.—Soak one-half package of gelatin in one-fourth of a cup of cold water five minutes. Scald one pint of milk and add one-half cup of sugar, three tablespoons of cocoa or grated chocolate, rub to a paste with a little water and a pinch of salt. Flavor with vanilla. Mix all together and mold and chill. Serve with whipped cream sweetened and flavored with vanilla.

Pomona Jelly.—Soak one-half a box of gelatin in one-half cup of cold water; dissolve in one cup of cold water. Add two cups of sweet cider, sweeten to taste; add two tablespoons of ginger syrup if desired; strain and mold. Serve with cold roast pork.

Apple and Cabbage Salad.—Shred a purple cabbage very fine, mix with finely sliced, then shredded, apple; add a small portion of chopped celery, a good boiled dressing, with or without a dash of onion juice. Season with salt and paprika and serve well chilled.

Is life worth living? I think that question has been answered for good and all. The cost has been more than doubled, and we still hang on.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

ECONOMIC MEAT DISHES.

A flank steak when carefully prepared makes a most appetizing dish.

Pound the meat and rub it with three tablespoons of cooking oil. When the oil is all absorbed sear quickly in a hot iron frying pan. Place the browned meat in a casserole, rinse out the pan with two tablespoons of boiling water and pour over the meat. Add one bay leaf, one clove of garlic, two tablespoons of salt, two tablespoons each of minced celery, green pepper and carrot. Add two cups of boiling water and in the last half hour's cooking add six medium-sized potatoes. Cook two and one-half hours. Thicken with a tablespoonful of flour mixed with a little cold water.

For those who like beef kidneys the following recipe will no doubt be enjoyed:

Beef Kidney, Creole Style.—Trim the fat from a fresh kidney and cut in three-quarter-inch slices; dredge with flour. Fry out one thick slice of bacon chopped and two tablespoons of chopped suet in a deep saucepan. Add the kidney, four chopped onions and one green pepper, also chopped. Toss until the meat is well seared and coated with a rich brown gravy. Now add one pint of tomatoes, one-eighth of a teaspoonful each of cayenne and curry powder, one teaspoonful of salt. Cover closely and simmer three-quarters of an hour. Serve very hot on fingers of buttered bread crisped in the oven.

Fowl Supreme.—Clean and cut up a six-pound fowl, leaving the breast in one piece. Add salt and steam one and one-half hours. Remove the breast, leaving the remainder of the meat to cook. Place the breast, skin side up, in a casserole without water. Put on the cover and cook one hour. Do not remove the cover while cooking as the steam will escape and the flesh be toughened. Cut the dark meat into cubes and add to a pint of white sauce. Place the breast on a serving dish with a head of cooked cauliflower, surround with sauce and garnish with toast pointers.

Stuffing.—To one cupful of cracker crumbs add four tablespoons of melted butter, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-eighth teaspoonful of pepper, one-half tablespoonful of poultry seasoning. Moisten with one-fourth cupful of boiling water.

The Immediate Audience. "Future generations will applaud your speeches," remarked the sincere admirer.

"I'm not trying to reach that far," replied Senator Sorghum. "I'm satisfied if I can be correctly quoted in my home town newspapers."

MIDDLETOWN, DEL., OCTOBER 15th, 1921

RUINING OUR NEW ROADS

A HUGE concrete mixer has gone over the newly tarred road from Middletown to Townsend or further, and torn it up badly in places. Great scheme! Tear the road up, and give yourself the job of mending it!

Some of this newly fixed road is finely ground into inch pieces or meal by those giant iron shoes of the caterpillar that slice it into grooves an inch apart. Something ought to be done about the matter, for the road thus slashed does not knit again, but ravel out and is ruined.

Then they seem to take pleasure in marching it down the middle of the road instead of running on one side of the road; as they might do. What does the Levy Court think about the matter?

HURT BY RHINOCEROS

American Woman Injured While Hunting in East Africa.

Mrs. Frederick Dalziel Misses Death by Inches in Encounter With Wounded Animal.

London.—After a six months' big game shooting and exploration expedition in the Tanganyika territory, formerly German East Africa, Mrs. Frederick Dalziel, a young American woman, is in London on her way to a quiet home life with her husband and two daughters in New York.

During her expedition, which she made in company with Sir Charles Ross and Mr. Barnes, the African explorer, and his wife, Mrs. Dalziel included in her "bag," among a large quantity of smaller game, an elephant, a buffalo, two rhinoceroses, three hipopotamuses and seven lions.

"I went for my health, really," she said to an interviewer, "for I was compelled to lead an open-air life."

Mrs. Dalziel described how she missed death by inches in an encounter with a wounded rhinoceros.

"One day," she said, "we were walking down one of the jungle tracks, almost like subway tunnels, which run from water hole to water hole, when we came on a big animal asleep. Sir Charles Ross went on ahead and fired at and wounded it, and it went crashing away into the jungle. I was some little way behind, and suddenly I heard, scarcely a yard away, the noise of the rhinoceros, which had gone round in a circle and was coming back to the track again."

"I went behind a bush, but the animal also had the same idea, and it crashed right past me and caught me with its side, and I and two natives who were with me were knocked over into a thorn bush. Except for some cuts about the face I was unhurt. Most probably the rhinoceros did not see me."

Here Sir Charles Ross broke in, saying:

"There is only one thing that Mrs. Dalziel has been entirely deprived of in her composition. That is—fear. When a lion suddenly appears a few feet away from you and Mrs. Dalziel says, 'What a beautiful lion!'—well, there you are."

"It was!" exclaimed Mrs. Dalziel.

WIDOW NEED NOT TELL ALL

Failure to Tell Husband of Former Children Is Upheld in Nebraska Court.

Minatone, Neb.—Henry C. Blood, business man, has found out that Nebraska courts do not consider it extreme cruelty for a wife to deceive him as to the number of her offspring by a previous marriage and to quarter the same upon him.

Blood, who is 53, got into correspondence with a widow in Maryland through a matrimonial newspaper advertisement, became enamored of her and went back east and married her.

He was led to believe, he says, that she had no encumbrances, but soon after they settled down here her children by a former marriage began to turn up until seven of them had appeared to board with him. He said that it cost him a lot more than he could earn to support all that number, and none of them showed any desire to become a wage-earner. He sued for a divorce, but lost.

FRENCH MARRIAGES DOUBLE

Birth Rate Shows Gain Over 1918—Deaths Decrease Say Official Figures.

Paris.—The number of marriages in France has doubled, the number of births increased, while fewer deaths are registered in 1920 than in 1918, the last full year of peace. This is shown by the official figures just published by the ministry of labor. The excess birth over deaths in 1920, was 159,790, as compared to 58,914 in 1918. The marriages totaled 623,869 in 1920, against 312,036 in 1918. The significance of these figures is increased when it is remembered that the total population of France has decreased as a result of the war.

Tiger and "Tricks" His Assets.
New York.—One tiger valued at $500 and a box of tricks worth the same amount are listed among the assets of Horace Goldin, theatrical magician, in a bankruptcy petition filed in the United States court here. Mr. Goldin said the tiger and the tricks had helped him accumulate debts of $87,776 in the last two years.

A HOUSE TO RENT

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

© 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Mr. Brent arranged his tie with precision, brushed an imaginary speck from the shoulder of his immaculate black coat, opened a window so that the room might air while he dined, and then with one glance around the four grim walls he closed the door and walked slowly down stairs. On the floor below he hesitated as he always did when Miss Wren's door was open. He liked the cheerfulness of the crimson carpet, the wicker chair, the big Boston fern, the sewing table and an occasional glimpse of Elsie Wren, sewing or reading or feeding her bird with little housewife airs that seemed strange in a fashionable boarding house.

But Elsie was not there, and her door was almost closed, so he did not absorb any of the homeliness which he craved. He went down and dined with a dozen other lonely men and women who tried to make homes for themselves out of four walls in another man's house, and with more or less success.

James Brent ate his dinner in an abstracted manner. He never joined in the general conversation about the long table, but occasionally some one would boldly address a remark to him, and he would answer in his deliberate manner, pleasantly, but reservedly. He was a lonely man, alone in the world, and lately he had grown to detest the four walls of his room on the third floor front. The very sight of Elsie Wren's red carpet thrilled him—he wanted a cheery room with a red carpet, a singing bird, a Boston fern, and a wicker chair with—

This thought came to him as he took his after-dinner stroll down the street of the small town where he lived. Over there on the hill was the university where he taught every day. He wanted a home to come to after the day's teaching, but he had nothing to offer such a bright, charming little woman as Miss Elsie Wren, who was a music teacher as well as the favorite inmate of the boarding house.

"If I had a home to offer," thought Mr. Brent blushing painfully in the dark, "but I could not take a wife home to a boarding house, though it has been done," he added hopefully. Out of the darkness an automobile flashed its lights. In the sudden glare Mr. Brent saw a white and black sign nailed on a tree—he saw a gate, a little lawn, and a small house—then darkness absorbed the picture as the car disappeared.

"Aha! A house to rent," mused the bachelor as he leaned on the fence. "A house—to-rent—"

A week or two later he went out for his Sunday afternoon stroll, overtaking Elsie Wren a block beyond the house. He had to hurry a little to catch up with her swift pace.

"Isn't it a lovely day?" she asked. He agreed, then he added nervously:

"Are you in a hurry?"

"Yes—and no," she laughed. "Why?"

"I've been looking at a house—would like your advice," mumbled Mr. Brent, opening the gate of the little place and closing it behind her. His fine, clean-shaven face was set in tense lines; never had a greater problem confronted the gentle mathematician than this one.

"Fancy your taking a place and keeping house," murmured Miss Wren, as she followed him into the wee hall. "Isn't it the cutest place—one could have plants in that window," she said with the flower-lover's eagerness.

"Yes, in any of the rooms—the sun follows the windows all day," he heard himself saying eagerly. "Awnings in the summer will make it cool—the rooms upstairs are charmingly arranged, but they are, of course, unfurnished, so are the kitchen and dining room." He opened the doors, but Miss Wren quickly furnished them in her mind, and the few suggestions she uttered betrayed the yearning of the single housewife for a real abiding place of her own.

"One room is furnished," he said at last, when it was time to go.

"Which one?"

"The living room. I've had it furnished like one I've admired, and—" he opened the door of the south room, and Miss Elsie Wren stood dumbly upon the threshold while her fair face grew pink, pinker, pinker. Here was a reproduction of her own cheery room at the boarding house—a room furnished with odds and ends from her old home—a crimson rug, gray walls, white woodwork, cloudy white curtains, a Boston fern or two, a cozy fireplace, a wicker chair, tables, a big easy chair, a masculine touch not included in Miss Wren's room!

"Oh—how strange!" she breathed.

"You—like it?" he asked, looking worried.

"I must!" Tears were in her kind eyes. "We could be happy here—together, Elsie Wren," he declared desperately. There was a little silence while the fate of the house hung in the balance. Suddenly she lifted happy eyes to his tender ones. "We will be happy here," she whispered.

"IS YOUR BARN SAPPING YOUR PROFITS?"

Modern manufacturers pay large salaries to efficiency experts, whose duty is to keep their eyes open for needless expenses and to stop the leakage of profits.

On the farm you must be your own efficiency expert.

A leaky roof may ruin your hay loft. A broken down stall can injure your horses. A rotten, worm-eaten floor may breed disease or break an animal's leg. A cold wind-swept barn is a bad place to house cattle.

When figuring up your profit and loss for the year you will find these little things are sapping your profits.

Look over your farm buildings, fences and sheds, and see if you aren't letting profits leak through which a little lumber and labor would stop. Then tell us what you want to do to stop this leakage, and we may be able to offer some suggestions. We will tell you what the materials for the repairs will cost.

Some rainy day when it is too wet to work in the field and the help is idle, you can set to work repairing your barn and other buildings.

How Better Than Pills?

The question has been asked, "What is the difference between Chamberlain's Tablets and other pills?" Our answer is, they are easier and more pleasant to take and their effect is so gentle that one hardly realizes that it is produced by a medicine. Then, they not only relieve the bowels but improve the appetite and strengthen the digestion.

Charity begins at home, and is seldom found of travelling.

The greatness that is thrust upon a man usually goes to his head.

Nature is not always kind. It is seldom the red-headed fellow who gets bald.

No man is so hungry for paradox as to feed his vanity by swallowing his pride.

Envy is an endless chain. The people we envy are envying someone higher up.

It is possible for a woman's head to be turned by flattery, even when she has a stiff neck.

The people who are weighed in the balance and found wanting always blame it on the scales.

Ever notice that the people who pose as martyrs always get a heap of satisfaction out of it?

TAKES CARE OF 5 CHILDREN

Mrs. Taylor's Sickness Ended by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Roxbury, Mass.—"I suffered continually with backache and was often despondent, had dizzy spells and at my monthly periods it was almost impossible to keep around at my work. Since my last baby came two years ago my back has been worse and no position could get in would relieve it, and doctor's medicine did not help me. A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I have found great relief since using it. My back is much better and I can sleep well. I keep house and have the care of five children so my work is very trying and I am very thankful I have found the Compound such a help. I recommend it to my friends and if you wish to use this letter I am very glad to help any woman suffering as I was until I used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

Mrs. MAUD E. TAYLOR, 5 St. James Place, Roxbury, Mass.

Backache is one of the most common symptoms of a displacement or derangement of the female system. No woman should make the mistake of trying to overcome it by heroic endurance, but profit by Mrs. Taylor's experience and try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Kutsuma, Ky.—"About eighteen years ago I was bedfast off and on for about six months, suffering from female trouble. I doctored with two different doctors, but nothing seemed to do me any good. OMAHA—Center of the Air Industry. This is Omaha's slogan these days. Why? Because this enterprising Nebraska city of 200,000 people will stage November 3-5 the First International Aero Congress. This congress is Omaha's own idea and the city has carried it out, in spite of many apparently insuperable obstacles, to the point where success is assured. In consequence, Omaha is proudly claiming to be America's most progressive aviation center.

The purposes of the congress are praiseworthy. The congress itself is likely to be of great importance. One purpose is to bring the flyers together for a big reunion, the first since the World War. Another is to show everything in connection with aviation, in order to interest the people of the nation in flying. A third is to form a national air body for the advancement of aviation in America. The big purpose is: "Aviation supreme for America."

The formation of a national air body appears to be well under way, through preliminary organizations in the states. At this writing twenty-five states are forming state organizations of the congress and will be represented by delegates. That there is necessity for the formation of such a body seems hardly open to argument. Rudyard Kipling, years ago, wrote of aircraft: "We are at the opening verse of the opening page of the chapter of endless possibilities." We have read far beyond that now and the march of events forces us to keep on turning the leaves, if we would keep our place in the forefront of the procession of the nations.

In the opinion of those who seem best qualified to know, the United States has not kept abreast with other countries in the development of aviation, especially in the matter of development of airways. For example, the best we can show in the way of a transcontinental route is that following the general line of Cleveland, Chicago, Omaha, Reno and San Francisco. The experts declare it to be not more than 40 per cent complete in organization.

An essential of the success of big business is imagination. Imagine, if you can, what the part of aviation in the life of the nation will be five years from now. It is no wonder that men of large affairs want the organization of a national air body and want it now.

Omaha's slogan was inspired by the Aero Club of Omaha, an organization of 100 former pilots and observers of the World War. Nevertheless, all the city is talking aviation these days. Three months ago, of course, it was not so. Omaha was no more enthusiastic over aviation than any other city. When its citizens heard an airplane droning overhead they gazed skyward for a moment. Otherwise they were uninterested. Then Earl W. Porter, president of the Aero Club of Omaha, conceived the idea of the congress and went to work on it. Now aviation is in the blood of the citizens. They talk of the many phases of air travel with the nonchalance of aces. In other cities the people may call anything that traverses the air an airship. But not so in Omaha; they rightly use the word aircraft. Do you hear blimp in Omaha? Well, hardly. Omaha knows that blimp is not only slang, but obsolete slang, whereas people in other cities are still applying the word indiscriminately to all balloons, rigid and nonrigid airships and lighter-than-air craft. You never catch an Omaha these days saying hydroplane when he means seaplane; he knows that the former never leaves the water. And you find him correctly using airplane, seaplane and airship instead of aeroplane, hydro-aeroplane and dirigible. You may even overhear a conversation about the captive helicopter. In short, everyone in Omaha appears to be enthusiastic about aviation in general and the coming congress in particular.

President Porter went to his fellow clubmen. They endorsed his idea and his plans and pledged their support. They also fixed on him as the logical head of the movement and he was duly made president of the congress. He accepted the position, turned over his business affairs to his partner and went to work. The first step was to get twenty-five Omaha business men to back the project for $1,000 each. This was easily done. It was also easy to get the endorsement of all Omaha business and social organizations. A speakers' bureau was formed to educate the citizens. Arrangements to raise funds for financing the congress were made. Attention was then turned to the preparation of a program worthy of the occasion.

Incidentally it became necessary to provide a landing field large enough to stage the program. A little thing like this, however, did not deter the air men, who located a farm of 136 acres showing possibilities as a field, although it was uneven and contained 150 large trees.

A "field day" was duly announced, and the air men and their friends rolled up their sleeves and with the assistance of two Holt Caterpillar tractors donated for the occasion, pulled the trees and leveled the land.

An open drainage ditch traversed the center of the field, which lies on the edge of one of the residence districts, only fifteen minutes' ride from the heart of Omaha. The city council was induced to vote unanimously to build a covered sewer through the field at a cost of $21,000. So the problem of a flying field was satisfactorily solved. In the meantime, an office force was busy mailing thousands of invitations and pamphlets to the air men and celebrities, such as President Harding, Marshal Foch, Orville Wright, Glenn Curtiss and Judge K. M. Landis.

The graduates of Fort Omaha balloon school, the center of America's wartime ballooning, were invited for their first reunion. Squadrons and escadrilles of flyers were asked to hold their first reunions in Omaha. The fifty-two American aces were invited, as well as everyone else interested in aviation.

The aid of Kansas City was enlisted in sending the American Legion convention delegates on to Omaha. The endorsements of national headquarters of the American Legion, of the Aero Club of America, of the World's Board of Aeronautical Commissioners and of the Aircraft Manufacturers' Association were obtained. The co-operation of the Army and Navy air headquarters was asked for and received.

The railroads helped out by offering a fare and a half rate for the round trip from all parts of the country to Omaha. Gutson Borglum, world-famous sculptor, offered a commemorative medal design symbolical of the work of the American air man during the war, as his "bit." James Hanley, song writer of New York, wrote a special song praising the work of the flyers, to be sung for the first time at the congress.

In preparing its program, Omaha had a piece of rare good luck right at the outset. As everyone knows, the Pulitzer Trophy Race became the world's most famous air event with its first running in November of 1920 at Mitchel Field, New York, under the auspices of the Aero Club of America. There were twenty-five Army, eight Navy, seven Marine Corps and one civilian entrants in the contest. The winner was Lieut. C. C. Mosely of the Army air service, who flew 132 miles in a Verville-Packard machine at an average speed of 175 miles an hour. The Army won seven of the first ten places in the contest and the Navy two. There were 30,000 spectators, including celebrities from all walks of life.

Well, the Pulitzer Trophy Race for 1921 had been scheduled for Detroit, but difficulties had arisen and the Aero Club of America had cancelled the race for the year. Omaha stepped in and offered the necessary funds. In consequence, the first announcement on the program is this: "The First International Aero Congress announces the second annual aerial contest for the Pulitzer Trophy, in connection with the first contest for the Aero Club of Omaha Trophy and also other aerial events. Sanctioned by the Aero Club of America under the rules of the Federation Aeronautique Internationale and those of the First International Aero Congress. To be conducted at Omaha Field, Omaha, Nebraska, U. S. A., November 3, 4 and 5, 1921."

The Pulitzer Trophy Race is a free-for-all contest for high-speed airplanes. The distance is approximately 150 miles, five times around a closed course of 30 miles from Omaha Field, thence northwest to a captive balloon on railroad track north of Calhoun, Nebraska, thence east to a captive balloon on the southern outskirts of Loveland, Iowa, thence return to Omaha Field. All pilots must hold an aviator's license, issued by the Federation Aeronautique Internationale and duly entered upon the competitor's register of the Aero Club of America. All airplanes may compete with pilot only. The Pulitzer Trophy, given by Ralph Pulitzer, editor of the New York World, is a four-foot silver trophy, to be raced for annually. Any flyer winning the trophy two years in succession may keep it. In addition, these prizes are offered: First, $3,000; second, $2,000; third, $1,000.

Event No. 2, set for 3 p. m. Thursday, is an aerobatic contest, with cash prizes as follows: First, $250; second, $150; third, $100. It is a free-for-all contest for all types of airplanes. The contest will be decided on points and the points will be given as follows: Immelman turn, 15; barrel rolls, 15; falling leaves, 20; loops, 20; vertical reverses, 15; tall spin, 15.

Event No. 3, set for Friday at 10 a. m., is a commercial derby for all types of commercial planes. The distance is approximately 250 miles. Starting at Omaha Field, contestants will fly to Des Moines, Iowa, land on Curtiss Field and return to Omaha Field. The prizes are: First, $2,000; second, $1,000; third, $500. The contest will be decided on points.

Event No. 4, set for Friday at 10:45 a. m., is a free-for-all race, with prizes aggregating $475, open to JN's, OX's-Standards, Orioles with Curtiss OX5 motor. Canucks and other planes with a speed of from 60 to 75 miles an hour. The distance is approximately 90 miles.

Event No. 5, set for Friday at 1:30 p. m., is a free-for-all race, with prizes aggregating $475, open to planes with a speed of from 75 to 90 miles an hour. The distance is approximately 90 miles.

Event No. 6, set for Friday at 3:30 p. m., is a parachute jumping contest, with prizes aggregating $350. The jump is from 1,000 feet or more and the winner is the contestant who lands closest to a given mark on the field.

Event No. 7, set for Saturday at noon, is a race for a trophy, with cash prizes aggregating $2,625. It is a closed handicap, open to all machines. The distance is approximately 150 miles.

Event No. 8, set for Saturday at 2:30 p. m., is a bombing contest, open to Army and Navy planes only. The first prize is a gold cup and the second a silver cup.

Inasmuch as the congress is to arouse interest in flying and stimulate the development of commercial flying, the program thus contains events for diversified types of aircraft. The intention is to attract a varied field of entries to compete for prizes to be awarded for desirable airplane performance as well as for high speed.

A feature of the congress will be a half-mile row of various types of airplanes lined up in front of the grandstand, with exhibits of accessories. Actual airplane construction will be shown.

For the entertainment of the crowds the great aerial spectacle, "The Bombing of Courcelay," will be shown, with 100 costumed people in the cast and a model of the French village set up on the field. Parades, banquets, boxing contests and a variety of other functions round out a most attractive program for three days and three nights.

Safeguard From Influenza.
During an epidemic of cerebrospinal meningitis in Uganda, Dr. J. A. Taylor found that a drop or two of iodine on the tongue was useful in preventing persons from catching it. This led him to try it for the same purpose in an epidemic of influenza. The result was that among Europeans, all of whom took the iodine, there was not a single case, although many of them were in daily contact with persons suffering from the disease. Dr. Taylor mixes tincture of iodine (B. P.) and honey in equal parts and places two or three drops of this on the tongue every three hours. Of course he isolates patients as well.

Higher Ideals.

Oswald Garrison Villard, the New York radical, said the other night at Cooper Union:

A pretty young Swede and an American girl were crossing the Ellipse, regardless of a lettered warning to keep off the grass. A bicycle policeman wheeled up to ask if they couldn't see the sign whereupon the American whispered to the other to answer him in Swedish. The little foreigner burst forth in excitedly mystifying language and the other girl chipped in with the few words of her own acquired stock.

Realizing the impossibility of enforcing the law on two young and attractive aliens, the officer not only permitted them the right of way but took the trouble to point out the Monument, government buildings and like public views.

When she got the chance the American girl asked her friend what she had said to the policeman—and that upholder of the law may be interested in the answer.

"The young men looked at him curiously and then one of them said: 'Your motive's good, of course, but doesn't your family object to your posing as a horrible example in this way?'"

DAIRY FACTS

TESTING INCREASES INCOME

California Association Is One of Old-est to Continue in Successful Operation.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The Ferndale Cow-Testing association in Humboldt county, California, is the largest cow-testing association in the United States. In the organization 106 members, owning from 2 to 150 cows, finished the work last year, and the association tested 4,546 cows, according to a report coming from the western office of the dairy division, United States Department of Agriculture.

Not only is this the largest cow-testing association, but it is one of the oldest to continue in successful operation. It was started 12 years ago, and now has a successful breeder as its secretary and manager.

The history of this association gives ample evidence of the value of cow-testing associations in developing the dairy industry. The report shows that 4,014 cows finished the year's work with an average lactation period of nine and one-half months and with an average butterfat production of 334.03 pounds per cow.

There are but few associations, dairy specialists of the department say, that equal this average production, and none that can approach it in number of cows and height of production.

Seventeen herds in the association averaged from 400 to 495.76 pounds of butterfat per cow; 19 averaged from 350 to 400 pounds; 38 averaged from 300 to 350 pounds; 23 averaged from 250 to 300 pounds, and 6 averaged from 213 to 250 pounds. It is interesting to note that the six low herds had been on test for the first time and the owners had not had a chance to cull out and breed up their stock.

The high cow of the association produced 728.95 pounds of fat; 17 cows in the association produced over 600 pounds of fat; 98 over 500 pounds; 628 one-inch obstruction, the impact may be as high as seven times the load, an average being about four times. The tests show, however, that the impact depends largely upon the kind and condition of the tire. Pneumatic tires cause the least damage to the road surface, the cushion of air reducing the impact so that it is seldom greater than 1½ times the static load on the wheels. Although the impact increases with the speed of the truck, and it is therefore highly desirable to limit speed by strict regulation, the use of pneumatic tires would make higher speed permissible.

The tests of the bureau of public roads have pointed the way to more scientific designing of roads for motor truck traffic, and there is every assurance that engineers will now be able to build roads with practical certainty that they will withstand the blows of heavy vehicles.

Further reassurance in this respect lies in the information that manufacturers are not building as many trucks exceeding five tons capacity as formerly. The number of industries in which very large trucks can be kept continuously working is extremely limited, so that the likelihood of forthcoming motor truck damage to public highways is considerably reduced.

GOOD HIGHWAYS ARE COMING

Federal, State and Local Authorities Join Hands for Great Good Roads Campaign.

The federal government, the state governments, and the local authorities have joined hands for the greatest good-roads campaign that has ever been undertaken anywhere in the world.

We are told that during the next five years there will be at the disposal of the state highway departments a grand total of not less than $3,000,000,000. No fewer than 22 great national highways are under construction or planned for early development.

The aggregate projects call for the expenditure of $600,000,000 during the present year.

PNEUMATIC TIRES ARE BEST

Cause Least Damage to Road Surface, According to Tests by Bureau of Roads.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Many roads not originally intended to carry heavy traffic were seriously damaged during the period of the war by the impact of heavy motor trucks. The natural result of this was to warn highway engineers of the importance of planning all future roads with reference to the kind of traffic that is likely to use them. The engineers responded immediately by building thicker roads and roads of more durable material; but in the absence of definite knowledge of the probable strength of the impact they have not known exactly how thick or how strong the roads must be made.

Recent tests of the impact of motor trucks made by the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture, develop the facts that when a solid-tired truck strikes a

Sunday School Lesson

(By Rev. F. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

LESSON FOR OCTOBER 16

PAUL WRITES TO THE CHRISTIANS AT CORINTH.

LESSON TEXT—1 Cor. 1:10, 11; 13:1-13. GOLDEN TEXT—And now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three, but the greatest of these is charity.—1 Cor. 13.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—John 13:34, 35; Rom. 12:1-8.

PRIMARY TOPIC—How to Show Our Love.

JUNIOR TOPIC—What Love Does.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—A Letter to the Church at Corinth. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Some Problems of an Early Church.

I. Party Spirit in the Corinthian Church (1:10, 11).

In this church rival factions were contending against each other. Some were for Paul, some for Apollos, some for Peter, and some for Christ. The cause of this condition was failure to see that the membership composing His body cannot be divided. By one Spirit all were baptized into the one body (12:13).

II. Love the More Excellent Way (1 Cor. 13:1-13).

All of the Spirit's gifts are good, but the most valuable of all is love. Not all can preach or interpret tongues, but all can have the gift of love. Love in this chapter is the more excellent way of chapter 12:31. (1) The transcendence of love (vv. 1-3). It transcends (1) speaking with tongues. For men to possess the loftiest eloquence and be lacking in love is to be as booming brass and clanking cymbal. To be able to speak pleasingly and powerfully is desirable, but to love is better.

(2) The gift of prophecy—the ability to unfold mysteries. To be able to penetrate the mysteries of nature and providence is good, but to love is better.

(3) Faith of the most vigorous kind, even such as to remove mountains, is of less value than love.

(4) Philanthropy of the most generous sort, causing one to surrender all earthly goods for the sake of the poor is praiseworthy, but unless actuated by love is valueless before God.

(5) Heroic devotion which leads to martyrdom is praiseworthy, but unless actuated by love is of no avail.

2. The Attributes of Love (vv. 4-7). (1) It is long-suffering and kind. It means not only to bear long, but to be kind all the while. It is much easier to bear long than it is to be kind all the while.

(2) It is free from envy. Those who love are entirely free from the spirit engendered because of the superior worth and success of others.

(3) It is free from boasting and vanity. Love strives to do good to all and is not careful to seek their admiration and applause.

(4) It is decorous. Love is always polite and mannerly; knows how to behave at all times.

(5) It is unselfish. It is always seeking the good of others and is forgetful of self.

(6) It does not give way to passion. It does not allow itself to be aroused to resentment. It is not quick tempered.

(7) It takes no delight in evil; does not impute evil motives to others; is not suspicious. It is forgiving. Love has no sympathy with that which is evil, but sympathizes with that which is true; has a common joy with it.

(8) It beareth all things. It wraps itself in the gracious mantle of love and shuts all evil out.

(9) Love is truthful; it looks into the future with confidence.

(10) Love is hopeful; it seizes the things of the future and brings them into the present, appropriating them for its use.

(11) Love is firm. It is free from vacillation. It intelligently sets its attention to things that are right and with unvarying strength holds fast.

(12) The Permanence of Love (vv. 8-13). (1) It outlasts prophecy. Prophecy in the Scriptures means both a foretelling of events and the teaching of the Word of God. Prophecy as prediction shall be fulfilled; prophecy as teaching shall be brought to an end in that day when teaching is not needed (Rom. 8:11; Jer. 31:34).

(2) It outlasts speaking with tongues. The race once spoke the same language, but as a judgment for sin and rebellion God brought confusion and caused the people to speak many tongues. The day is coming when the redemption wrought by Jesus Christ shall have been accomplished in all its fullness; all nations shall be brought back to one tongue.

(3) It outlasts knowledge. The knowledge we now have is only relative, but the day is coming when this relative knowledge shall be done away by the coming in of a wider and nobler intelligence; the twilight shall be lost in maturity, for at Christ's coming we shall see Him face to face and shall be like Him. Love will always abide, for God is love.

A Prayer.

Father, hasten that happy time when between my duties on Sunday and my duties on Monday there shall be no more sea! Give me an expanded view of what it is to be religious! Show me how far-reaching it is, how many things are included in it! Teach me that the road to Emmaus is broad enough to hold many travelers! The further I journey on that road let me learn the more how vast it is! Make my afternoon more charitable than my morning! Let me see how those can stand on Thy road that dared not stand on mine! Let me see into what unlikely quarters stretches Thy street of gold! Let me see the child in spirituality whom I deemed unfit for my arena taken into Thine arms, the man who would not take Thy name accepted for Thy nature! The midway shall be more glorious than the morning, if only it reveals how far-reaching is Thy land.—Selected.

Lower Prices at Fogel's

FOGE'S Department Store is meeting the demands of its patrons by offering at lower figures Clothing, Underwear, Footwear, Millinery, Household and other articles.

If there are persons who judge quality by price and are willing to pay the high prices unprogressive stores are asking, they have only themselves to blame.

We are giving our customers a chance to buy their Winter supplies at figures much below those elsewhere offered. We do not claim to sell our goods at cost, but that we are able to offer better prices to our patrons because we had the foresight to lay in full supplies of staple Winter Goods when prices were much lower than at present; moreover, every article in our Store is now going at the present lowered level of prices, regardless of what they originally cost us. Indeed, we are selling many articles for less than we can replace them!
